JAPANESE ARTILLERY MOVES INTO ACTION

BATTLE NEAR RIVER BRIDGE CONTINUES TO RAGE UNABATED

League Council To Meet To Consider New Crisis

By International News Service
For the first time, Japanese artillery went into action today in the Nonni River bridge area of Manchuria, where the most serious clash between Chinese and Japanese forces since the conflict began continued unabated.

Japan was rushing additional reinforcements from various posts in recently-occupied territory, while the Chinese were preparing to launch a counter-attack to regain the ground lost in yesterday's battle, in which forty Japanese and 200 Chinese were killed. Meanwhile, according to International News Service dispatches, the League of Nations Council, with its renewed demand for Japanese evacuation greeted by the bloodiest battle of the crisis, prepared to meet in Paris on November 17 to consider the alarming situation.

The Japanese foreign office branded as a "forgery" the so-called Tanaka Memorandum, outlining purported plans for a former Tokyo government to conquer China by first crushing the United States, Mongolia and Manchuria. Soviet Russia, unimpressed by fears expressed in various capitals that she would soon be drawn into the conflict, celebrated the fourteenth anniversary of the Russian revolution with nationwide festivities.

TOKYO, Nov. 6.—The Japanese war office was rushing plans today to send fresh troops to northern Manchuria as advances from the Nonni river front indicated the Chinese army of General Ma, Chan-Shan, after being turned back toward Taisihar, was preparing for a counter attack upon the Japanese expeditionary force.

Press dispatches from Manchuria stated the Chinese were defeated after several hours of bloody fighting, and that the Japanese had moved to the north side of the Nonni River, occupying the town of Taisihar.

Forty Japanese and 200 Chinese were killed in the fighting before the Chinese withdrawal began. With renewed fighting anticipated as soon as the Chinese forces have been reassembled at Anganki or Taisihar, Japanese reinforcements, including airplanes, were being dispatched from Chang-Chun and Mukden.

At the war office here it was announced 4,000 replacements would be sent to Manchuria at once to relieve troops which have been in the occupational area since the middle of September, but that there was no intention at present to increase the Japanese Manchurian force beyond the 15,000 officers and men permitted under the Portsmouth treaty.

It was expected here, however,

DEMAND RECOUNT OF MOVIE BALLOTS

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Nov. 6.—Demand for a recount of the ballots cast in the referendum to ban Sunday movies which carried by a bare majority of twenty votes will be made of the board of elections by the losing faction, it was declared today.

Official canvasses of the votes cast on the Sunday observance committee's initiated ordinance banning Sunday shows added one vote to the unofficial majority of 19. Sunday show supporters said the application for a recount would be filed by five voters as soon as the result has been certified.

Motion pictures are to be shown here next Sunday, theater owners stated today.

MUSIC FILLS AIR AT EISTEDDFOD

Young singers and artists took the stage last night in instrumental solo and oratorical events. Honors were divided almost entirely between the young competitors from Portsmouth, Oak Hill and Jackson.

PROSECUTION STAR WITNESS UNSHAKEN IN PANTAGES STORY

Character Of Girl Target Of Attacks By Defense

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 6.—Throughout a day of grueling cross-examination, Eunice Pringle, youthful dapper, maintained her story that Alexander Pantages, wealthy theatrical magnate had attacked her, and prosecution attorneys were satisfied with their case as court was adjourned today until Monday.

Miss Pringle has finished her testimony in the retrial of Pantages on attack charges.

Under a ruling of Judge Clair S. Tappan, defense attorneys must present any inquiry about Miss Pringle's past on direct and specific evidence and not by innuendo.

Miss Pringle denied she once had appeared at the window of a man's apartment in Hollywood attired only in night clothing.

Questions asked by defense counsel indicated witnesses would be produced in attempt to show that Miss Pringle was not "an innocent university girl" when she met Pantages.

One of the questions directed at her was: "Eunice Pringle is it not a fact that you went to the office of Alexander Pantages on the afternoon of August 9, 1929, for the express purpose of placing him in a compromising position?"

Miss Pringle vehemently denied that was her intention in visiting the office, but declared she went there to seek an engagement as a vaudeville dancer on Pantages' theatrical circuit.

FIVE PERSONS DEAD IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Passenger Air Line Bursts Into Flames On Golf Course

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 6.—Victims of a tragic airplane accident, the bodies of five prominent men lay in Cooper Hospital today, charred almost beyond recognition.

An inquest into the tragedy, in which a speedy transport plane of the Ludington line bound from Newark to Washington plunged like a plummet to the ground on the third green of the Cooper River Country Club and burst into flames, was scheduled for today.

STORY WHICH SAVED ACCUSED PAIR FROM DEATH NOW DENIED

Statement By Walter Ralls Discredits Nephew's Yarn

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6.—From behind Ohio Penitentiary's high walls today came word that the last-minute murder story which a Crestline Negro dramatically told last Friday night, snatching himself and his uncle out of the electric chair, has been contradicted by the uncle.

The state board of paroles is in possession of a statement by Walter Ralls, 32, made since he came to prison and prior to last Friday night, which indirectly blames his nephew and death row companion, Blanton Ralls, 19, for the shooting of Crawford County Sheriff George Davenport.

Blanton Ralls' eleven-hour story, which was excitedly related to a prison chaplain while the executioner waited for the two Negroes to stage a mournful walk to the chair, named Elijah Ralls, a dead uncle, as the murderer of the sheriff, and caused Governor George White to grant the pair a two weeks' stay.

The Walter Ralls version, it was said, blasts the story told by the nephew by relating the type of weapon carried by each of the three men the night the sheriff was slain while attempting to arrest the Negroes for chicken-stealing.

Although the account by Walter Ralls did not name the killer, it did say that a shotgun was carried by Blanton Ralls, thereby putting the responsibility on the nephew since evidence has been given to show that the sheriff died from a charge from such a weapon, it was said.

Crawford County Prosecutor J. D. Sears is expected to use the statement by Walter Ralls Monday when the Negroes, through their attorneys, appeal to the Crawford County common pleas court for a new trial, it was reported here.

MOTIVE FOR LOVE MURDERS IS PUZZLE; WOMAN SERIOUSLY ILL

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 6.—Arizona authorities are no nearer solving the mysterious love murders of Agnes Ann Lerol and Hedwig Samuelson today than they were when Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd was rendered to her husband and attorneys in Los Angeles ten days ago.

This was frankly admitted today by Sheriff J. R. McFadden and County Attorney Lloyd J. Andrews who have tried for a week to definitely establish a clue to the identity of the persons or person who they believe have aided the blonde velvet tigress pack the bodies of her victims in trunks and ship them to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Judd's first story—that she killed the two women for whom she had admitted warm affection—in self defense, has remained unshaken in the face of grillings in her solitary cell in the Maricopa County Jail, and under pressure and influence of her own attorneys.

While the authorities are attempting to establish a "definite" motive for the crime, on ev-

David S. Ingalls, 32, of Cleveland, O., assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aeronautics, will be a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, in Ohio, next May, he has announced. Ingalls was state representative from 1927-1929. During the war he was a member of the Yale aviation unit.

ACQUIT EX-JUDGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT

PORTSMOUTH, O., Nov. 6.—William R. Sprague, former judge of the Portsmouth municipal court, today stood acquitted on the charge that he had aided his former clerk, Mrs. Marguerite Clark Tidd to embezzle funds from the court.

After three hours deliberation a jury of four women and eight men returned a verdict of acquittal late yesterday. Sprague had no comment on the verdict of the jury.

The former jurist testified in his own behalf at the close of the trial, denying that he had known of a shortage in the court funds, as charged by Mrs. Tidd from the witness stand. He stated that he had tried to prevent court proceedings after Mrs. Tidd had told him of the shortage, and attempted to borrow money to replace the missing funds.

Maurice Maschke, national committeeman and local and county G. O. P. boss and a close friend of Ingalls, is expected to give him open support which would practically assure him of solid Republican backing in the city and county. Maschke recently indicated his desire to see Ingalls run.

WINE INDUSTRY HIT WHEN SERVICING OF PRODUCT IS HALTED

Justice Department Ends Grape Juice R'ance

(Copyright, 1931 by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—For the first time in several years it was legally impossible today for Mr. John Citizen to buy a keg of California grape juice and without further concern on his part, have it magically transformed into a case of twenty-five bottles of highly potable wine in sixty days.

Harrassed by the dregs, kidded by the wets, the department of justice has stopped in and ended the farcical situation wherein one branch of the federal government, the farm board, was financing the manufacture of wine which another branch of the government, the prohibition bureau, was ostensibly trying to suppress.

Fruit Industries Inc., a California concern which has borrowed millions of dollars from the farm board during the past few years and with this capital built up a gigantic business, has agreed to abandon the servicing of its product.

It will still be possible to obtain the grape juice hereafter, but the facility and ease with which it is turned into 12 to 14 percent wine is to be considerably handicapped. For one thing, the company won't touch it any more after it reaches the consumer's cellar. Its testing, bottling, labeling and casing service is ended, henceforth, its every man his own vintner, and he, not the company, is responsible for nature's immutable laws.

Behind the grape concentrate experiment lies a story of two years of bickering, doubt, uncertainty, and embarrassment of high places in the government, which on occasion has reached the White House itself.

The original plan of marketing the juice of California grapes was born in the fertile mind of Donald D. Conn, managing director for a number of California grape cooperatives. Confronted with the problem of enormous overproduction of grapes, and impressed with

U. S. STEAMER GOES AGROUND

The Hybert is a freighter of 6500 tons, built for the United States shipping board in 1929.

CLEVELAND FAVORS INGALLS CANDIDACY

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6.—Unanimous support from the Cuyahoga and Cleveland Republican leaders of David S. Ingalls' candidacy for governor of Ohio was forecast today as the announcement of his participation in the gubernatorial race was hailed with unbridled enthusiasm.

Maurice Maschke, national committeeman and local and county G. O. P. boss and a close friend of Ingalls, is expected to give him open support which would practically assure him of solid Republican backing in the city and county. Maschke recently indicated his desire to see Ingalls run.

PRESIDENT HOOVER CONTINUES TO SPAR WITH NAVY LEAGUE

Gardiner Refuses To Apologize In War Over Navy Needs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Like weather aparting for an unbreakable hold, President Hoover and the Navy League circled each other warily today as their seriocomic war over relative knowledge of American naval needs approached a climax.

Spectators principally were interested in watching how Mr. Hoover would react to being accused a second time of having struck a vital blow at national sea defense through his drastic economy program.

He had called upon League President William Howard Gardiner to apologize publicly for sponsoring a pamphlet expounding such views rather forcefully, but instead the "big navy" organization's executive committee re-affirmed the charges.

The President's own committee of inquiry continued its deliberations with indications a report would be available for the White House to make public this afternoon. This committee—headed by John Hays Hammond, the millionaire mining engineer—already has reached a verdict of "not guilty" and merely is concentrating on putting it into duly convincing language.

Whether the executives would utilize his regular Friday afternoon press conference to indulge in a few personalities of his own was the immediate question of speculation. Mr. Hoover stands recharged of being "abysmally ignorant" and a "congenital pacifist"—to which Gardiner added an additional touch yesterday by stating he first uttered them "in the best of good faith."

The Hoover "vindication committee" conducted its final sessions in the greatest secrecy. Last night it held a meeting, refusing to tell reporters where it would be. The news men located their quarry at the home of undersecretary of State William R. Castle, Jr., a member, but it did them no good as all five committeemen had entered into a solemn pact to say absolutely nothing until their report of abolition was in the hands of the President.

Chairman Hammond, the only one who has gone any talking at all, indicated "certain definite conclusions" were reached at their initial meeting yesterday afternoon. In line with Mr. Hoover's instructions to confine themselves to refutation of Gardiner's charges through examination of "readily available departmental records," he said the committee had been busy studying documents. No witnesses have been, or will be called.

(BULLETIN)

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—Toll of death in the gun explosion on board the U. S. S. Colorado was increased to five today when G. E. Swift, first class seaman, died on the hospital ship Relief from his injuries.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 6.—Its upper decks scarred by the explosion of an anti-aircraft gun that killed four men and wounded nine others, the dreadnought U. S. S. Colorado was moored at its dock today while naval officials sought to determine the cause of the blast.

The explosion occurred during target practice off the Santa Rosa Island in the Santa Barbara group off Los Angeles.

Immediately following the disaster, the Colorado, one of the most powerful dreadnoughts of the American fleet, headed at full speed for the harbor here, arriving last night at 10 o'clock. As soon as the Colorado arrived in port the wounded men were transferred to a tug which carried them to the hospital ship, U. S. S. Relief where surgeons and nurses were waiting.

The dead are:
Lieut. Ralph Bradford, Jr., Pontiac, Ill. Lewis A. Clark, seaman, Los Gatos, Cal. M. Hawkins, seaman, Hastings, Mich. J. J. Schurr, seaman, St. Louis.

Four of the injured may die, physicians said. They are Lieut. Winston I. Quattlebaum, Ensign John D. Huntley, Seaman R. O. Duff and Seaman G. E. Swift. The seriously injured include Seamen H. J. Hinton, J. R. Kowalski, G. V. Stover, H. E. Lutz and W. H. Duval.

The explosion occurred when the officers and men, with a group of observers about them, were preparing a 5-inch anti-aircraft gun for a shot at a floating target above, which was attached to a bombing plane.

According to reports a time fuse on one of the shells became fouled as the shell was being placed in the breach of the gun; causing the explosion.

Flying pieces of shell and parts of the gun tore into the sides and deck of the huge dreadnought after mowing the crew down.

Admiral Richard H. Leigh, commander of the battle force, was aboard the U. S. S. Maryland to observe the target practice. The Maryland was nearby when the accident occurred on the Colorado.

ONLY REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMAN FROM TEXAS DIES FRIDAY

Rep. Wurzbach Dies After Appendicitis Operation

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 6.—Rep. Harry M. Wurzbach, Republican member of congress, died here today from complications following an attack of appendicitis. His home was at Seguin, Texas.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Rep. Harry M. Wurzbach, only Texas Republican in the house of representatives, died early today at San Antonio. Notification was received by the clerk of the house.

Wurzbach has been sick for some time. His condition became serious following an operation for appendicitis last Tuesday.

Holding a unique position in Texas politics, Wurzbach was the only Republican in the delegation of the state which hopes to elect the next speaker of the lower house.

A member for many years, his fortified position in his district was demonstrated when he won his seat over Augustus McCloskey, Democrat, in a colorful contest decided only after McCloskey had taken his seat in congress.

For many years Democrats had attempted to oust him as the only disturbing factor in an otherwise solid South front of Democrats.

A ruling made by Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, as assistant attorney general, that section 29 of the Volstead Act protected the right of the homeowner to manufacture and sell fruit juices "non-intoxicating in fact" in the home, Conn went to the farm board and requested a cooperative loan.

The startled and puzzled farm board was uncertain about the legality of the business. The law plainly gave them authority to finance any bona fide cooperatives, and the California vineyardists certainly came within that category. The board sought advice from the department of justice, and received assurance from Mrs. Willebrandt that it was all legal enough.

Still the board was not fully convinced. In the long run, after many conferences, the board agreed to the experiment—but insisted that Mrs. Willebrandt, who was then resigning from the department, become general counsel for the vineyardists.

"We want her to keep the drys off our necks," said one member of the board.

She subsequently did become the general counsel for the business at a salary reputed to be $30,000 a year.

And she was fairly successful, too, in quieting the drys. On one occasion she appeared before heads of all the dry organizations and appealed eloquently and successfully to them concerning the legality of the business.

As the business grew and expanded to nation-wide proportions, however, other embarrassments cropped up.

On one occasion when Allan Hoover, son of the President, was studying at Harvard he wrote his father a rather "kidding" letter about the activities of the wine salesmen about Harvard campus.

The President was said to have been much aroused. Officials of the federal farm board, including the then Chairman Alexander Legge and C. C. Teague, the California member of the board, were summoned to the White House and compelled to explain their connection with the business. After considerable discussion they are said to have convinced Mr. Hoover that it was all legal enough.

But the business as a whole remained suspect from that point on. The department of justice became increasingly curious and dubious about it. Agents became more watchful in seeing to it that the letter of the law was observed.

In the end the department obtained a decision from a federal court in Kansas City that sale of grape juice "for the unlawful manufacture of wine" was illegal. That ruling superseded Mrs. Willebrandt's old interpretation of the law.

The great grape experiment has ended.

SAY GAS FROM STILL WAS CAUSE OF DEATH

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6.—Monoxide gas from an alcohol cooker at a bootleg distillery was given today by officials as the cause of the death of a man identified as Tony Gaston, 60, whose body was found at the side of a lonely road in Mid-dieburg Heights.

The body, discovered by two golfers, was covered with a piece of drapery when found. A brown leather suitcase containing a notebook and some clothing was under the head.

While considering the possibility that the man had been murdered, authorities today stated they were inclined to believe that Gaston had been overcome by fumes while tending a still. His companions, finding him dead from the monoxide gas, apparently had carried him to the spot where he was found, it was believed.

BROTHERHOOD ENTERTAINS AT OYSTER SUPPER HERE

Mr. J. F. McEwen presented sketches from the life of Richard III as a feature of the program following an oyster supper given by the Lutheran Brotherhood at the First Lutheran Church, W. Main St., Wednesday evening. Mr. McEwen gave a brief sketch of the life of Shakespeare and how the works and thoughts of that author have touched human nature.

A novelty feature was a musical program presented by the Yowler family including three brothers of Mr. C. P. Yowler, president of the Brotherhood. They were assisted by Miss Katherine Maxwell, Mr. D. H. Barnes, a guest of the Brotherhood, gave a short talk in which he told how religious questions are being considered today by those who are leaders in character building agencies, the commercial world or in politics.

Guests present included members of the Brotherhood, boys of the church and members of Troop 45, Boy Scouts of America. Those present were: George Anderson, James Little, Harvey Myers, Robert Dodge, Ralph Nichols, Kenneth Fisher, Kenneth E. Snyder, Max Richards, Kenneth Jones and the Messrs. George Hertzberger, John Chaney, Edward Nichols, George A. Fudge, F. F. Wilson, H. M. Fudge, H. K. Snyder, D. H. Barnes, J. D. Yowler, Walter C. Jones, C. P. "QUILT FAIR" IS NOVEL ATTRACTION

One hundred and thirty-six quilts, many of them more than 100 years old, were displayed at the "Quilt Fair" at Trinity M. E. Church Thursday afternoon and evening. The "fair" was under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the church.

Among the many interesting quilts and coverlets exhibited was one entered by Mrs. Jeannette Ervin, St. Detroit St., which had been made by her mother, Mrs. Samuel Greenwell, eighty-eight years ago. It had been made from the baby clothes of the late Whitelaw Riddle, formerly of Cedarville, former ambassador to Great Britain and New York journalist.

A quilt exhibited by Mrs. Findlay Torrence was 125 years old and was thought to be the oldest quilt displayed. Two quilts which had been made in China and belonging to Robert Lewis, Central High instructor, were displayed and a quilt of the running grapevine pattern, made by Mrs. Mary Hartsook, 92, near Xenia, was also an interesting feature. Several coverlets and tufted quilts were exhibited and the history attached to each made it an interesting display.

More than 300 persons visited the "fair" between the hours of 2:30 and 10 p. m. and light refreshments were served. The committee in charge of the affair was Mrs. Sherwin Spahr, president and chairman; Mrs. J. P. Fudge, Mrs. Emery Beall, Mrs. Frank Fristoe, Mrs. S. M. McKay and Mrs. Rollo Lamar.

ENTERTAINS WITH DINNER PARTY THURSDAY

Mrs. W. P. McKay, W. Market St., entertained a group of out-of-town guests at a delightful dinner party at her home Thursday. A four-course dinner was served and a color scheme of yellow and white was used in the appointments.

Following the dinner several Xenia guests joined the group and bridge was enjoyed during the afternoon. The guests presented Mrs. McKay with a gift.

Guests from out-of-town were Mrs. J. Shields and Mrs. Nagel, Fort Thomas, Ky.; Mrs. Whick and Mrs. William Madden Sr., Newport, Ky.; Mrs. William Madden Jr., Fort Mitchell, Ky.; Mrs. Patterson, Sunbury, O.; Mrs. Shoemaker and Mrs. Nersady, Avondale, Cincinnati and Mrs. Bergue, Wyoming, Cincinnati.

Miss Louise Treharne, Zimmerman, was guest at a house party in Detroit, Mich., over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shaffer and Mrs. Anna Boyd, W. Market St., returned home Wednesday from Hot Springs, Ark., where they spent four weeks.

BEAUTY IS NOT JUST A GIFT

For every woman who inherits beauty, there are five who win charm and good looks. Without health, there can be little natural beauty. And a serious handicap to health is constipation.

This widespread ailment often causes headaches, listlessness, sallow skins, pimples—undermining both health and beauty.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This delicious cereal provides "bulk," which gently clears out the wastes. And Vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce.

Try two tablespoons daily—usually sufficient for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

About 2,500 men, virtually all of the unemployed here, were expected to be given work within the next few weeks. Only residents of this city were extended the aid. Depression will be "just a memory," city officials stated.

NEW YORK'S ELECTION

The outcome of Tuesday's elections in New York State is of national interest because of its possible bearing on the Democratic National convention next year. Among the matters submitted to the voters was a constitutional amendment providing for the expenditure of $10,000,000 to plant trees on abandoned farm land outside of the Catskills and Adirondacks parks. Gov. Roosevelt strongly supported the amendment. Alfred E. Smith, whose standing in Tammany Hall seems to have lost little or nothing by his defeat in the presidential election of 1928, attacked it vigorously on the ground that it involved waste of public money. The people adopted the amendment and thus inferentially endorsed Gov. Roosevelt against the Smith faction, as far as this particular issue was concerned. Score one for the Governor.

The desperate efforts of Democratic leaders to turn a Republican Assembly in Albany into a Democratic one failed. The Assembly remains Republican. Score one for those who do not look favorably upon the Governor's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1932.

All things considered, Gov. Roosevelt ought to be satisfied with the results. Some time ago a veteran Democratic political observer, Mr. Frank R. Kent, weighing the chances of the various possibilities for the Democratic nomination, wrote that "Gov. Roosevelt seems pretty well in the lead of the Democratic race—and is so recognized." This week's test of strength in New York does not seem to afford the Smith-Raskob-Shouse element, which is not enthusiastic over his candidacy, any ground for rejoicing.

Gov. Roosevelt is widely popular in all parts of the country; but he has, as Mr. Kent pointed out, a number of "defects" as nominee of the Democratic party for the presidency. Among them are his leaning toward government ownership and the leaning of Western Insurgents toward him, which does not set well with Eastern business interests; and his attitude toward prohibition, which has caused the Wets of his party to accuse him of being a "trimmer." A victory in New York on the question of reforestation does not enhance or minimize these "defects." What it does point to is the ability of Gov. Roosevelt to carry his State in a favorable presidential year even against a Smith-Tammany revolt, if it should occur.

ANNIVERSARY

The Republic of Panama has just celebrated the twenty-eighth anniversary of its separation from Colombia, an event of considerable significance in our own history. The first fruit of Panamanian independence, as far as the United States was concerned, was the Panama Canal, a boon to our own and world commerce, as well as a potential means of quickly uniting our Atlantic and Pacific fleets in case of war.

On Nov. 3, 1903, a revolution broke out in Panama. Ten days later President Roosevelt recognized the revolutionary government by receiving its minister in Washington. On Nov. 18 a treaty was concluded with Panama, which gave the United States the right to build a ship canal across the isthmus from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, as well as the possession in perpetuity of the Canal Zone, a strip of territory 10 miles wide running the whole length of the canal.

The swiftness with which these events followed one another caused a good deal of criticism of President Roosevelt. The allegation was widely made that the Panama revolution had been instigated from this country. The full truth probably never will be known. Afterwards Roosevelt was wont to boast that he "took Panama." Colombia protested vigorously against this country's action; and under a treaty ratified in 1921, was awarded $25,000,000 compensation.

The secession of Panama removed obstruction to the building of the Panama Canal by the United States; and the canal has brought prosperity to the 450,000 people of the republic. They do most of their trading with this country. Commerce between Panama and the United States has grown rapidly in recent years. The value of our imports from and exports to Panama in 1922 was roughly $18,000,000 and in 1929 over $46,000,000. The United States also has done much for Panama by making it a more healthful place to live in than it probably would be today if it had not come under our protection. The Panamanians have good reason, therefore, to look back upon the birth of their independence with satisfaction.

SLEEPING COMMUNITIES

The observer looks around the world, and sees many countries which are seemingly asleep. China and India are among the countries, which after centuries of unconsciousness to world progress, are now waking up and trying to recover from bad dreams.

EFFORTS SUCCEED

The Government's efforts to preserve American jobs for American workers through strict enforcement of the immigration provision against the admission of persons "likely to become public charges" appear to have been highly successful. Only 1,004 Canadians received visas for this country in September, a decrease of 84 per cent from the number allowed to enter in September, 1928; while for the first full year of strict enforcement, Oct. 1, 1930, to Sept. 30, 1931, a total of 8,102 visas were issued to native born Canadians, as compared to 54,387 issued for the corresponding months of 1928-29, a reduction of 85 per cent.

Similarly with Mexico. Only 180 Mexicans were granted visas in September, 1931 in August and 93 in July, a total of 412, as compared to 17,028 Mexicans who received visas for the United States in the corresponding quarter of 1928. The departure of Mexicans from the United States between Jan. 1, 1930, and June 30, 1931, exceeded admissions by 84,799.

Without amending the immigration laws, as was proposed by some members of Congress, a drastic curb has thus been placed on the flow of labor over our borders. Other nations have adopted similar devices to meet a temporary crisis in employment. When conditions have reverted to normal and renewed immigration can be absorbed, a relaxation of enforcement methods may be expected. At the moment the use of this "saving clause" of the Immigration Act of 1917 is one of the Government's most valuable contributions to easing the employment situation in this country.

A smile is the cheapest passport to happy land.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK. — Your reporter has been so depressed today that not even the cherry smile of Fay Wray, encountered in an elevator of the Ambassador could dispel his blues. It is one of those days of drips and glooms.

I'm sorry to be like that—but the clump of the feet of the jobless seems to resound from the wet pavements. (Will the orchestra please go into the Danse Macabre, and will the bassoons blow appropriately?) After all, that is one of the attractive things about New York—one can be so exasperatedly miserable on the slightest provocation.

But the taxi drivers and the theatrical producers both rejoice in moderately bad weather—not bad enough to keep folks indoors, but still nasty. Then people must be hauled about and amused.

AIRSCAPE

Nonetheless, this gray day brought a new experience so easy that I should be ashamed for not reporting it sooner. I mean the view from the Empire State, in the tower piercing low, murky fog-banks. Not much was to be seen, but plenty was to be adumbrated, as Poe would have expressed it.

A few tips of the taller buildings reared up over a dim expanse of mist, like a sea. There was the Chrysler spire, there the Channing building's roof, where adagio teams love to pose for newswires, and a little way off the twin silver spires of the new Waldorf Astoria. The downtown steel-and-stone giants were too distant to resemble anything but insubstantial ghosts. Was that the shimmery outline of the new City Service building, or was I seeing things?

The whole airscape brought to mind a play of a few seasons back, later a talkie—Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound." The character of this work awoke on a mysterious ship without a crew, creeping along endlessly through a thick fog. That's rather how I felt this morning up over the town. Try it yourself, when you have an hour between trains, and the day is fog-dimmed.

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

Owen Davis swears he doesn't remember the names of some of his successful plays. . . . The New York Bridge club executives went into conference the other day about the symbols "QT" and "PT"—quick trick and probable trick, respectively, to you—appearing on their bulletin board. Some of the members say strangers may think reference is being made to quarts and pints. . . .

George Bancroft, that great big-headed one of the flickers, has himself waked up every morning by a valet who waves a crushed orange before his nose—and, it may be, his press agent waves a bill every month for the idea. . . . James (Drums) Boyd, the novelist, makes a living these days down in North Carolina in the official capacity of "M.P.", Master of the Fox Hunt. . . .

The rumor is around that some of the stores selling "overstocks" of recent books have done so well that the publishers have had new printings rushed through on several "overstocked" items. . . . A classy ad of one of the swankier stores today hearkened me back to the days when toasters and waffle irons were just a couple of gadgets you got by writing in and enclosing a few soap coupons. . . . This one offered a beautiful dress with real cuffs and a complete fall wardrobe packed in a handsome doll-trunk all ready to take home, if you bought a little girl's dress. . . .

And to think it wasn't so many years ago (ask me how many) that every New York merchant advertised the same—by the year. Newspapers then soaked 'em free step sun of forty whole dollars a year for a given amount of advertising, and that included the paper delivered to the door. But you could economize. Without the paper, it was only $30.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER

AGREEMENT TO STOP RUN ON U.S. GOLD IS VIEWED AS MOVE TO CANCEL DEBT

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—Virtually all accounts agree that American and French bankers are congratulating themselves on the result of the recent conference between President Hoover and the premier of France, Pierre Laval.

Concerning many of the policies which Mr. Hoover and M. Laval discussed neither one was able to give any binding assurances to the other pending the approval of congress in the former's case and of the French parliament in the latter's. Each appears, however, to have been authorized to speak with authority for his own country's banking interests, and the testimony is overwhelming that, as to the establishment of an "entente" satisfactory to both these groups, their efforts were entirely successful.

In brief, the United States holds approximately half of the world's entire supply of gold. France holds approximately half of the remaining half. The residue is so homeopathically scattered among other countries that of late they have been finding their respective stores of it inadequate to serve as a basis for their various currencies, and several of them definitely have abandoned it in favor of silver.

If this tendency continues, obviously a considerable part of its present value will be knocked from under the vast gold hoards of the United States and France, which of course will not be worth so much of the world ceases to regard gold alone as the price index of everything else bought, sold or exchanged in the course of international transactions.

However much they may differ on other questions, clearly it is to their mutual advantage to co-operate for preservation of the gold standard.

Through Mr. Hoover and M. Laval they undertook to do it. One of the first results of their compact was a discontinuance of French gold withdrawals from the United States, which had been going on previously for some time at too rapid a rate to be pleasant on this side of the Atlantic.

It may seem as if, with approximately twice as large a supply of the precious metal as the Gallic republic, American financiers need not have been disturbed by a "run" on their resources. Nevertheless, the trend of international exchange made it possible and had it continued indefinitely, there was danger that the dollar would slump in the world money market, as the pound did a few weeks ago, forcing England at least temporarily to resort to what virtually is a fiat money basis.

For the same reason that the United States and France do not care to be left as the world's two lone gold standard countries (gold being an asset largely for the sole reason that it is generally so recognized), France decidedly did not desire to risk driving America to any such extremity as England's. The drain probably would not have continued to that extent, but American bankers did not like the threat of it. French bankers saw the point, and stopped insisting on the rules of the financial game, thus ending it.

That is to say, that evidently was part of the bargain between Premier Laval and President Hoover.

That there was such a bargain is demonstrated by the fact that the Gallic bankers complied with it.

All this was very friendly and clubby on the part of the bankers. As interpreted by many members of congress however, it brings the cancellation of Europe's war debts to the United States just that much nearer.

Senator William H. King of Utah, who is prominent among these lawmakers, explains the first step in the process thus: "Inasmuch as the world price of gold is rising steadily—since the supply of it is not increasing nearly in proportion to world requirements for it, to meet the expanding needs of business—it is an ideal money from the standpoint of any creditor. In other words, whatever loan he may make in terms of gold, requires constantly more and more to repay it, stated in terms of labor or commodities, because prices of everything but gold are constantly increasing, so that more must be furnished to balance the stipulated gold value."

This, by common consent, is what has happened to America's outstanding claims against Europe; they represent much more than when they were contracted.

Thus far, good, cold-bloodedly speaking, Uncle Sam profits by gold.

But war debts being cancelled and the government's slate wiped clean, there still will remain Europe's indebtedness of a private character, due to American bankers.

Cancellation of war debts obviously would make economic conditions in Europe much easier, whereupon the collection of these private indebtednesses, hitherto in the nature of second mortgages and increasingly doubtful, should become immediately much more likely. Indeed, with some relaxation of present restrictions (such as perhaps the bankers would suggest following war debt cancellation) the still-outstanding private debts unquestionably would rate as first-class obligations.

This, at any rate, is the argument of those members of congress who express suspicions that American bankers actually are trying to render war debt cancellation inevitable.

The question may arise: Of what benefit can such a program, in the interest of American bankers, be to French bankers? The answer to this query is easy. French bankers are fully as well disposed as any bankers on earth toward cancellation of America's war claims against Europe, for they include America's war claims against France. The only item on the debt-and-reparations cancellation program to which any Frenchman takes exception is the proposal to cancel German reparations to France. Cancellation of debts and reparations, linked together, is an unwelcome thought to the French, since the reparations on which they depend from Germany exceed the amount of the obligations which they owe to America. Far be it, however, from France to look disapprovingly upon the idea of war debt cancellation pure and simple.

A tiny baby makes a gesture with its hands or an expression appears on that baby's face that reminds you exactly of its grandfather.

It is environment or it is heredity, but it's also weird.

A small boy at table—a boy whose father had died before his son was born—suddenly says that his father is at the door. Someone goes to the door. It is the father's brother, who resembles his dead brother, but whom the small boy has not seen, either.

How did that ever happen? Isn't that weird, too?

gold's rise. "Ah, but," says Senator King, "there is nothing like enough gold in the world to pay off Europe's debts to America."

I would appear, then, that as suggested by Senator King, repayment must be made in labor—or goods, representing labor.

Here Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee interposes, pointing to the next step in the direction of cancellation. "High tariffs," he says, "have placed an almost complete embargo upon the entrance of foreign labor—or goods, representing it—into the United States, so that repayment in that fashion is impossible."

What, then, is the remedy? "There is none in such a situation," answers Senators King and Hull in unison.

"War debt collection is ended."

But war debts being cancelled and the government's slate wiped clean, there still will remain Europe's indebtedness of a private character, due to American bankers.

Cancellation of war debts obviously would make economic conditions in Europe much easier, whereupon the collection of these private indebtednesses, hitherto in the nature of second mortgages and increasingly doubtful, should become immediately much more likely. Indeed, with some relaxation of present restrictions (such as perhaps the bankers would suggest following war debt cancellation) the still-outstanding private debts unquestionably would rate as first-class obligations.

French bankers are fully as well disposed as any bankers on earth toward cancellation of America's war claims against Europe, for they include America's war claims against France. The only item on the debt-and-reparations cancellation program to which any Frenchman takes exception is the proposal to cancel German reparations to France. Cancellation of debts and reparations, linked together, is an unwelcome thought to the French, since the reparations on which they depend from Germany exceed the amount of the obligations which they owe to America. Far be it, however, from France to look disapprovingly upon the idea of war debt cancellation pure and simple.

But war debts being cancelled and the government's slate wiped clean, there still will remain Europe's indebtedness of a private character, due to American bankers.

Cancellation of war debts obviously would make economic conditions in Europe much easier, whereupon the collection of these private indebtednesses, hitherto in the nature of second mortgages and increasingly doubtful, should become immediately much more likely. Indeed, with some relaxation of present restrictions (such as perhaps the bankers would suggest following war debt cancellation) the still-outstanding private debts unquestionably would rate as first-class obligations.

This, at any rate, is the argument of those members of congress who express suspicions that American bankers actually are trying to render war debt cancellation inevitable.

The question may arise: Of what benefit can such a program, in the interest of American bankers, be to French bankers? The answer to this query is easy. French bankers are fully as well disposed as any bankers on earth toward cancellation of America's war claims against Europe, for they include America's war claims against France. The only item on the debt-and-reparations cancellation program to which any Frenchman takes exception is the proposal to cancel German reparations to France. Cancellation of debts and reparations, linked together, is an unwelcome thought to the French, since the reparations on which they depend from Germany exceed the amount of the obligations which they owe to America. Far be it, however, from France to look disapprovingly upon the idea of war debt cancellation pure and simple.

A tiny baby makes a gesture with its hands or an expression appears on that baby's face that reminds you exactly of its grandfather.

It is environment or it is heredity, but it's also weird.

A small boy at table—a boy whose father had died before his son was born—suddenly says that his father is at the door. Someone goes to the door. It is the father's brother, who resembles his dead brother, but whom the small boy has not seen, either.

How did that ever happen? Isn't that weird, too?

Diet Responsible For State of Teeth

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

The idea has been drummed into our heads so long that good teeth are due to one thing only—keeping the teeth clean—that the recent researches on the subject are completely upsetting.

Yet the fact seems to be that filth and germs, as causes of decay, are secondary. The actual undermining of the teeth is caused by faulty nutrition, due to a bad diet.

If a dentist takes a tooth and polishes the surface as thoroughly as he can, polishes it until it shines, until it seems to you the smoothest thing in the world and then if you put that enamel surface under a low power microscope, it looks like a torn up street. It is more like a rough, worn piece of asphalt or cement than the smooth surface you expected to see. Now the microscope you use need not be very powerful—not sufficient to see any germs at all. The germs are far too small to be seen in the magnification of which I speak. Millions of them could be lost in the crevices of any one of the roughenings on the surface of the tooth. And no amount of brushing could keep these surfaces permanently free from germs. Yet, of course, according to our old teachings, it is the germs which get into cavities and make the decay.

The question, then, of keeping the teeth clean and free from germs in order to prevent decay is hopeless. It is necessary to keep the teeth as clean as possible; this is not a preaching against brushing the teeth with a good dentifrice.

But the factor that keeps the germs out of another kind—it is due to bodily resistance. It is established by proper diet, which determines the hardness of the denture and enamel.

The diet usually advocated for this is as follows:
1. One or two eggs a day.
2. The expectant mother who is not ably liable to tooth decay during that period, and for the growing child, two eggs a day.

2. The juice of one-half a lemon and one-half pint of orange juice once a day. It seems to me this amount of orange juice is excessive, but I am giving the recommendation for investigators. It seems, however, to be the vitamin C which is needed by teeth, and these fruits are abundant in it.

3. From one-fourth to one-half head of lettuce. Lettuce is especially rich in mineral salts needed by the teeth.

4. Two different vegetables once a day.

5. From eight to thirty-two ounces of milk a day. That is from one to four glasses.

6. Fruits other than lemons and oranges.

7. Meat once or twice a day.

This diet is designed not only to prevent dental troubles, especially in growing children, but when pushed to the limit of the largest amounts of the foods listed, to aid already established cases of pyorrhea and trench mouth.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
V. R. H.: "I have small lumps on my eyelids, about half as large as a bean. They grow gradually, and when they are so big they gather and break. They are very sore. What are they, and what should be done?"

Answer: From the description these might be cysts or wens or xanthelasma. If cysts, you possibly need glasses or an antiseptic ointment. If the others, early removal before they get to the troublesome stage. In any case, a doctor should be consulted.

A. D. I.: "Is it possible for a person to have thyroid symptoms without enlargement of the thyroid gland?"

Answer: Yes.
Mrs. L. B.: "Is smoking injurious to an expectant mother?"

Answer: No harm has been proved to come from smoking during the period of pregnancy, either to mother or child.

Girl 'Crazy' About Teacher

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR MISS LEE: I am very much in love with my teacher. He is young and handsome and shows much kindness toward me. How may I let him know that I love him without seeming vulgar? What means would you suggest for me to acquire his love and respect?"

"DOUBTFUL"

"P. S.—Please kindly answer this plea in your column immediately and I will appreciate same. Always glad to oblige. Doubtful. I think the best way to win your teacher's love and respect is to be a good pupil, conceal your feelings and not worry him with your affection. Probably the other girls in his classes feel the same way you do about him, and it must be embarrassing to a young man to have a lot of school girls making eyes at him and having palpitations when he approaches."

If he really is attracted to you he will show it outside the class by asking for a chance to see you. Good looking young ministers and teachers ought to be protected in some way from adoring females.

I hope this answer won't make you change your mind about my "thorough knowledge and sympathy" with my readers. I simply want to give you a timely warning so that you will not let yourself be foolish about this young man and then regret it.

J. M. J.: Keep on going to night school to fit yourself for a better position when business picks up. J. M. J. Your mother is doubtless angry with herself for letting the man you speak of have her money and sending it and takes it out on the person near at hand, which happens to be you. She could take legal action to recover the money, if she wished.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: This is in answer to 'Disgusted' in your column. I am the mother of a young girl working in an office. I want to say I feel as if I would want to die of grief and shame, if

I knew my daughter's employer was such a scoundrel as to be making love to her at his office when he has a wife at home.

"Why not make the office a safe place for young girls to work?"

"A TRUE FRIEND AND MOTHER."

I assure you, True Friend and Mother, that most offices are perfectly safe places for young girls. Few male employers and fellow workers are dangerous flirts. And Disgusted was being true to his wife in spite of the fact that he felt he could not love her as much as when he married her.

POLLY: You could not very well entertain the boy friend in your room unless you could have it furnished as a sitting room. The only thing to do would be to invite him to the room in which your uncle and aunt sit and introduce him to them. Under the circumstances I am afraid you would have to do your visiting when he drives you home.

A LUTHERAN HIGH SCHOOL: You and the boy friend probably quarrel because you are so much in love and therefore not in normal states of mind. Why not plan to curb your tempers and avoid controversial subjects instead of separating? Also why not tell him that is what you want to do, and patch the friendship up?

LONESOME BABE: Guess you have done all you could to make up the boy, and will just have to let him get over his peevishness. Don't worry too much about it. He probably will come back. Just now he is probably having a grand time feeling how false women are and that he will never trust another. He didn't treat you very well, did he?

LIZZIE: I'm sure I don't know why the boy doesn't ask you for dates any more. I presume it is because he doesn't wish to. There is nothing you can do about it.

Chestiness Required By Style

By GLADYS GLAD

Joan Crawford's figure is rated as one of the best in Hollywood. And in that Mecca of beautiful women, a gal's got to have "sumpn" to be rated as one of the best—figured of them all.

Joan's figure is the type that dress artists in particular consider perfect. One well-known designer and his assistant attribute this to a great extent to the fact that is Crawford's chest is so perfectly developed and splendidly carried. And our present dress fashions certainly do demand well-formed and well-carried chests.

Since a little "chestiness" is required by our latest styles, quite a few of us females will have to take steps to give our silhouettes the required curves. The proper development of the bust is of the utmost importance. But even if the bust contours are all that they should be, if the chest is sunken or hollow, it will ruin any damsel's claims to figure beauty completely.

Exercise is all that is needed to develop and raise that chest in the right way. The best-developing exercises contained in my booklet "The New Figure" are very effective for this purpose. But there is one exercise that is especially excellent for lifting the chest. It is as follows:

Stand about two feet away from a wall, facing it, and place the palms of your hands flat against it. Next, slowly move your head in, your chin, up, until finally your chin and chest both touch the wall. Then return to first position and repeat. Don't do this exercise too quickly, or you're likely to get a crick in your neck. Do it slowly, and you'll find it a grand little chest-lifter.

Another good exercise for building up and filling out a concave chest is to stand firmly on both feet, hands at sides. Then move the left foot backward and off the floor and at the same time bend the body forward, tilting the chin up, and spreading the arms out and back like a pair of wings. This exercise is extremely beneficial for the body as a whole. But it is especially effective as a chest-lifter. And if practiced in conjunction with the exercise described above it should bring about the desired results in short order.

BUCCANEERS DUE TO IMPROVE; MAY FOOL TROJANS SATURDAY

Pulled Surprise Last Year; Need Reversal Of Form

By PHIL FRAME
A somewhat disillusioned but nevertheless hopeful band of Xenia Central High gridders will try to disprove the old adage that "they never come back" in a scheduled Miami Valley League football game with Troy High on the Trojan gridiron at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

While the chances of a Buccaneer victory are almost null and virtually void, there is nothing to prevent the Xenia eleven from going into the game with the idea of providing plenty of trouble for the strong Trojans.

There is little encouragement to be found in comparing the rival records of the two teams this season. Troy, which shares the M. V. L. leadership with three other schools, has been defeated only once, losing to Sidney High by a margin of two separate and distinct points after touchdown.

Xenia's grid record is far from impressive, especially in recent weeks. The Bucs have won a game, tied a game and have now lost four straight by sizeable scores with four more yet to play. In the six games played Xenia has scored a grand total of only eight points, but these eight points were important. Two of them gave Wilson's boys their lone victory and the other six brought about a tie score.

On this basis it would seem that if Xenia is able to score at all against Troy, it may either win or tie. That is deep figuring.

So far this campaign Xenia Central has, in a way, been represented by two separate and distinct football teams. The combination that started the season played three corking good games, beating Washington C. H., 2 to 0, outplaying Piqua Central but earning only a 6 to 6 tie, and then giving a most commendable exhibition against a far heavier and more experienced Wilmington eleven in losing 13 to 0.

During the last three weeks, however, a complete transformation has taken place and the Bucs have lost successively to Cincinnati Withrow, Miamiburg and Greenville by big margins. There is something wrong somewhere—and it isn't in Denmark.

The first third of Xenia's season was praiseworthy, the last third was not so good. Following this line of reasoning, the Bucs are due to turn over a new leaf as they come down the home stretch and they might just as well begin Saturday against Troy. Remember last fall when a Xenia eleven seemed woefully weak, did a right about face and vanquished a touted Trojan eleven, 25 to 7, in a stunning upset?

ENTERTAINMENT TO PRECEDE DANCE FOR CHARITY NEXT WEEK

A program of music and specialties will be presented in connection with the Armistice Day Charity Ball at the Armory Wednesday evening. It was announced Friday. An hour and one half of entertainment, starting at 7:30 o'clock, will be presented before the dance which starts at 9 p. m.

The program includes two short concerts by the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band under direction of H. E. Seal; a specialty talk by Charles A. Bone, a tap dance specialty by Ruth Donley, Jeanette Hiltbert, Helen Spire and Jean Montague and a group of solos by Miss Eleanor McNeill.

Edward Smith will give a dancing specialty and Mrs. Joseph Herr and Miss Lucille Denham will present a group of novelty songs. The Misses Katherine Keible and Aisseta Gorham will put on a tap dance. Archer Maxwell will offer a specialty act and several other features are being planned as the program has not been entirely worked out. Music for the dance will be furnished by Harry Gehring's Orchestra, Dayton, and there will be cards for those not caring to dance. Refreshments will be on sale during the evening.

Tickets for the Charity Ball are on sale by various organizations of the city and W. A. King, secretary of the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, announces that members of that organization desiring tickets may obtain them from C. W. Adair. Proceeds from the affair will be given to Xenia's Community Chest.

All persons taking part in the entertainment are asked to meet for rehearsal at the Opera House Monday at 7:30 p. m.

OPEN MARYSVILLE SCHOOLS ON MONDAY

MARYSVILLE, O., Nov. 6.—Marysville's public schools, closed two weeks ago because the board of education was without funds, will open Monday as the result of a new move made today by B. E. Gaumer, newspaper publisher, who filed suit in probate court asking the court to take over the schools. Authorities had planned to keep the doors of the schools closed until January 1, when new funds will be available, after a levy to provide operating expenses had failed in Tuesday's election.

Gaumer discovered a provision in Ohio law which provides that when the board of education fails to operate the schools the probate court may order money to be paid out by the county treasury. Expenses met in this manner will be deducted from future school revenue.

DAYTON TEAM WILL REPRESENT XENIA ON GRIDIRON THIS YEAR

The Famous Clothiers of Dayton, an independent football team made up exclusively of young players who were scholastic stars, will represent the Xenia Merchants on the gridiron during the balance of the present season, thereby providing weekly football entertainment for Xenians on Sunday afternoons. This announcement is made by George Ewing, local sports promoter, who declares the imported group of former high school grid luminaries will play its home games in this city.

Three games have already been scheduled for the next three Sundays, starting November 8 when Xenia's grid representatives clash with the Dayton Merchants, presumably at Washington Park here.

Other contests booked for the near future are with the Middletown Trojans for November 15 and Middletown Panthers November 22. Admission of 50 cents will be charged to the games, George adds. He reveals that the contests will be officiated variously by Rachford, Fuller, Knisley, Kafory, Halder and Phil Buck.

Xenia's prospective team will apparently be a lightweight eleven, with the heaviest member tipping the scales at 180 pounds. He is an end and his name is Willard Wall. Most of the players will scale in the 160 and 170-pound class, however. Personnel of the team will be as follows:

Player	Wt.	Position
"Red" Staley	143	Half

Brooks Reeder, 23, 400 Arlington Ave., Springfield, received severe injuries to his left arm in an explosion at the Radio Electric Store, 14 W. High St., where he is employed, Thursday afternoon. Reeder is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reeder, Jamestown.

He was working in a rear room of the establishment when the explosion occurred. The force of the blast hurled him through a rear door to the outside of the building. It is thought the explosion was caused by the ignition of gas, the nature of which has not been determined. Officials of the Springfield Gas Co., following an investigation, said natural gas did not cause the explosion.

Reeder was taken to the office of a nearby physician for treatment and was later removed home. Two other employees in the store at the time were not injured. Damage to the stock amounted to $500 while the building was damaged to the extent of $400. Fire did not follow the blast.

YEGGS BREAK SAFE OPEN; GET $2,450

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6.—Safe crackers broke into a restaurant here early today, knocked the combination lock off a safe and escaped with $2,450 in cash. Police expressed the belief that the crime was committed by someone who knew that money was kept in the safe each weekend to cash checks for workers in the Federal Glass Company plant nearby.

Sam Simons, proprietor of the restaurant, stated that the money had been placed in the safe last night as a reserve to be used for cashing the workers' checks.

If at first you don't succeed, try again; and if you don't succeed a second time, try once more.

This appears to have been the motto of the O. S. and S. O. Home Junior football team which, after losing twice to Central High's combined junior high-freshmen griders this season, finally defeated the "Little Bucs" in a third contest on the Home gridiron Thursday afternoon. The score was 7 to 6.

Fullback Massie was the big noise for the cadet juniors. Ripping off long gains and playing a great defensive game, the cadet player lunged over the goal line for the Home's touchdown on a line plunge in the second period. He then added the necessary extra point on another line thrust.

Held in check for three quarters, the "Little Bucs" put over a touchdown in the final quarter on a seven-yard end run. Attempt to add the extra point would have tied the count met with failure when a Central back, trying an end run, was thrown before he even reached the scrimmage line.

THREE BANDITS GET $1,000 FROM BANK

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Nov. 6.—Three "rough looking" bandits who held up the Farmers' Bank at Lewistown, near here, yesterday afternoon, taking $1,000, today had apparently vanished.

With a start of twenty minutes, the robbers successfully eluded a posse formed by Sheriff Charles Bewley.

After the robbers' car shot down a state highway leading toward Dayton, it soon disappeared and officials were unable to get near the bandits again.

Cashier T. M. Cooper was forced to lie on the floor of the bank while cash drawers were rifled.

PEDESTRIAN DEAD AS AUTOS COLLIDE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6.—Injured by flying bottles hurled from a truck which had been struck by another machine, Miss Jean McCollister, 35, of New Lexington, was dead here today.

Miss McCollister received a fractured skull in the accident as she walked along the sidewalk near a parked truck, which was hit by an automobile driven by A. P. Cunningham of Cleveland, after Cunningham's car had collided with a machine driven by Edward Enderle, Columbus.

90th Anniversary Thought
History proves the face value of any institution or organization. This church has had ninety years of effective service in this community. Its membership has spread over the years into many other communities so that people trained in this church have continued the work elsewhere. Men and women have gone out of this church to the uttermost parts of the world as missionaries. Men have attained high rank who found their first steps in the Gospel in this church. Attend church Sunday at the 90th anniversary.

9:15 a. m.—Sunday School. Former Sunday School superintendents have been invited to be present, which would extend back for many years in relationship.

10:30 a. m.—Morning worship. A sermon dealing with the salient points of the ninety years history of the church will be preached. "Ninety Years of Achievement," Children's object sermon.

7:30 p. m.—Quintet union services at this church. Preliminary to the regular sermon by Rev. W. W. Foust there will be a "Prince of Peace" Declaration Contest.

Count that Sunday lost to your soul, wherein you have not joined in formal public worship with your fellowmen in a church. Private and radio devotions do not take the place of public worship with your fellow pilgrims.

PEACE

(And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord and great shall be the peace of thy children.—Isaiah 54:13.)

SICK with the butchery of war, we wonder why peace does not possess the souls of men. Yet what can we expect? No sooner do our children ask for toys and books than we give them swords and guns, and tales of battles.

If war is to be abolished, our children must be "taught of the Lord" the commandments of the Prince of Peace. The achievements of peace, its heroes, the conditions under which it is possible, may be taught so thoroughly in the Sunday School—and from that starting-point, in the home and in the day school—that a generation shall arise who will "seek peace and pursue it."

To Fathers and Mothers:

The temptations of everyone are great, and unless one has more than an ordinary ground-work of honesty and faithfulness, he may be caught unaware in the sudden wind of plausible opportunity, and tumble over the precipice and be ruined. The place to obtain this "more than ordinary ground-work" is the Sunday School. Supplement home training with attendance at Sunday School.

To Those Away From Home:

A little girl was heard to end her evening supplication with "Good-bye, God. Tomorrow we are off for our vacation." So we, who claim to love our Lord with heart and soul and mind, seem oft, when we're away from home, to leave Him far behind. The Churches here heartily invite you to their services.

Our pressing need is "a church big enough to overspread a big land; eager enough to carry the message of a saving gospel that all our polyglot people shall hear and understand; homely enough to make itself at home among the lowliest; confident enough of the dignity of its mission to press its claims upon the loftiest; sure enough of its truth to commend the wisdom of God's salvation to the wise; simple enough in interpretation of the truth that the simplest minded may not fail of comprehending; sagacious enough to adjust itself to its delicate task; human enough to be all things to all men and touch the common human chord; divine enough to hallow human life at every turn of its ministry."—McAfee.

LEGION BACKS MOVE TO MAINTAIN GUARD COMPANY IN XENIA

Jos. P. Foody Post of the American Legion is unequivocally behind the movement to reorganize Company L of the Ohio National Guard, Commander Paul Halder announced Friday, making it known that a resolution endorsing the movement had been unanimously approved by the post.

The resolution prepared by Dr. H. C. Messenger, Ohmer Tate and Capt. H. L. Hays, of the O. S. and S. O. Home, provides that every member of the American Legion shall do all within his power to bring about a more complete understanding of the worth of the National Guard company to Greene County.

Pointing out that availability of the new armory, dedicated a year ago on Armistice Day, is threatened by the spirit which prevents enlistment of the proper type of young men in the guard company, Legion leaders passed the resolution pledging themselves to bring about a campaign of education in cooperation with other civic agencies.

"The standard of the National Guard has been so raised that it will be an honor for every man to have his name on its rolls and those who are eligible in Greene County should immediately investigate the advantages offered," it was said.

Organized efforts to have the true status of the National Guard made known to every resident of the county is now in progress by a citizen's committee, in which the Legion is represented. It is hoped that within a short time the company will be recruited to full strength and that there will be a waiting list of eligibles as is created in other cities of similar size where a guard company is stationed, it was announced.

EX-XENIAN WRITES MAGAZINE ARTICLE

The November issue of "Scouting," a monthly magazine devoted to information for Boy Scout leaders and published by the national organization of Boy Scouts of America, contains an interesting article entitled "The War Bonnet Case," written by Leigh M. Nisbet, former Xenian, now field Scout executive for the Boston, Mass. council. The article is illustrated with drawings also furnished by Mr. Nisbet and deals with directions as to the best methods for constructing rawhide cases for preservation of Indian war bonnets which many Scouts make.

Of And For The People

Abraham Lincoln might have been thinking of savings and loan companies when he said—

"Of the people, by the people, for the people."

Functioning as they should.... for mutual good.... these specialized first mortgage lending institutions are today safeguarding the funds of their staunch depositors.

They are exercising the most provident legal provision ever placed around any financial institution.... which feature was written in the Ohio Statutes several decades ago by the far-seeing pioneers of our business.

Savings and loan companies cannot be raided.... they are not subject to "runs."

Another reason why people... not only in Xenia but all over Ohio... are taking their funds to savings and loan companies as a matter of protection.

Bob Williams, Now Dead, Had Great Future Ahead

This department's secret service bureau furnishes a report from Operative No. 1 which would seem to imply that "Platinum Blonde" is about the most entertaining picture of the talkie age.

The film, as may be guessed, in "Sherwood Forest," one time features Jean Harlow but the late Robert Williams, the handsome and capable young actor who was taken by death only Tuesday, practically "steals the show." Loretta Young is also in the cast.

The picture is hung on a newspaper story but this did not prejudice Operative No. 1, who is not a newspaper worker. The operative reported that the film story is full of merry quips and entertaining situations and of the lamented Mr. Williams.

Robert Williams had only been in Hollywood a short time, or his fame would have been more widespread. His first wife was Marion Harris, the record crooner, by whom he was the father of a nine-year-old child. The child and his second wife survive him.

Will Constance, Bennett or Gloria Swanson, be Hollywood's most beautiful bride-of-the-month of November or will they share honors.

Hollywood thinks both will be brides before Thanksgiving with Miss Bennett marrying the Marquis Henri De La Palaise, who, according to latest reports, is still the husband of Miss Swanson.

Friends of Miss Bennett say her sister, Joan, also a film star, is making preparations to leave New York soon "to attend a wedding in Hollywood Sunday, November 22." Miss Bennett denied a report she would elope to Arizona by airplane and marry the Marquis December 2.

Gloria's divorce from the Marquis cannot be granted until Saturday. Miss Swanson has not indicated she would make a court appearance then to obtain the decree.

Maureen O'Sullivan has gotten herself a job at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as Johnny Weismuller's leading woman in "Tarzan." Locations for this film will be colorful. The studio has built a jungle.

WAR VETERANS HERE
RECEIVED $2,665
IN OCTOBER CLAIMS

Veterans of the World War residing in Greene County received a total of $2,665.65 during October in initial payments of compensation, disability allowance and other claims against the United States Veterans Bureau, it was revealed Friday.

The information was contained in the monthly report of Service Officer Paul Fuller, of Jos. P. Foody Post, American Legion, this amount being recovered on claims which Service Officer Fuller filed for Greene County veterans.

There was a total of fifty-six claims received and filed with the Veterans Bureau during the month the report says, of which twenty-one were settled, initial payments amounting to $2,665.65. There are thirty-four claims pending with the bureau.

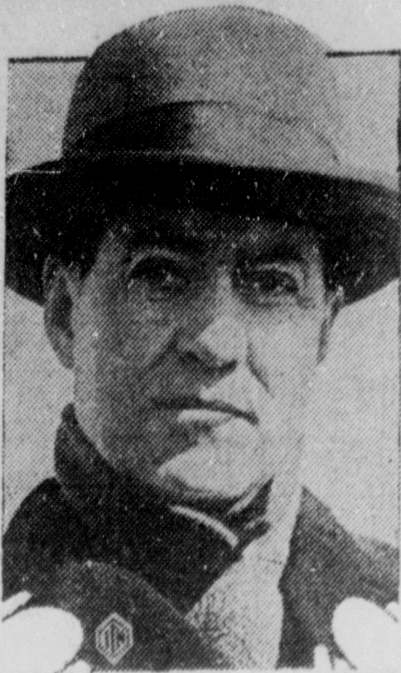

Included among the claims settled and pending were twenty-nine disability allowance or claims of veterans for non-service connected disabilities which have developed in recent years. Nine of these claims were settled for a total of $524.65. Two death claims were presented and allowed.

In addition to this work the service officer and his committee furnished other relief to twenty-three veterans in the nature of lodging, meals, etc. The service officer granted seventy-two personal interviews in regard to various claims and, representing the Legion post, made a trip to Washington, D. C., on behalf of Xenia's claim for location of the Veterans Bureau Hospital to be placed in Ohio.

SEVEN-LEGGED FROG

FORT ANN, N. Y.—One of the most curious freaks of nature ever seen in this section, a seven legged frog, was found a few days ago by Wayne Fisher, in the woods near here. The frog had been about four inches long with four normal sized legs, two short legs and one unusually long one. The frog will be preserved in the Fort Ann High School for study and observation.

Trained His Last

Jimmie Rowe (above), trainer of the famous racing horse, Twenty Grand, has developed his last horse. Death claimed the noted horseman, son of the late James Rowe, also a famous trainer, at his home in Baltimore. The younger Rowe was credited with training his horses by "sheer common sense," and he learned considerable of his lore from his father.

"I liked Chesterfield right from the start"

"NO, I don't know a blessed thing about how cigarettes are made. But, of course, I would want the tobacco to be PURE. And then I've heard that the blending is very important. I'd want that to be done just right.

"Then the paper. I don't like paper that you can taste—or smell when it's burning. I'd want that pure too.

"Another thing. I want to smoke whenever I feel like it—without worrying about smoking too many. So I want my cigarettes MILD.

"But the main thing, of course, is TASTE. I don't care for over-sweetened cigarettes. I much prefer those that are just sweet enough.

"Chesterfield seems to satisfy in every one of these ways. That is why I'd rather have a Chesterfield."

SMOKERS tire of too much sweetness in a cigarette, and they don't like rawness. For a steady diet, they want a cigarette like CHESTERFIELD—a mild and mellow smoke, free from any over-sweetness or any harshness or bitterness. That's why more and more smokers every day are changing to CHESTERFIELD.

Good... they've got to be good.
